We'll be keeping an 'Eye on Entertainment'

Senior reporter Kathy Gresey and reporter Dani Schweigert have a style all their own, and they now will be sharing that with our readers.

Kathy and Dani will be unveiling their new blog this week on our Web site, www.LakeCountyJournals.com.

I will now turn over the rest of my column to Kathy and Dani:

Hey there, everybody! Wow, we can't believe we actually have a blog!

If our names look familiar, it's because we've been with the company for several years. We are excited to enter the world of blogging.

As you might have guessed from its name, this blog will keep an eye on everything entertainment - that includes fashion, music, food, fun and more. We want this blog to look at Lake County's culture and what creates the area's vibe. And we want to hear from you, because we don't make the culture of Lake County - you do. "Eye on Entertainment" is a place where all of us can come together to talk about what's going on in the community. Know of an event coming up? Hosting an event? Did you go to a really cool concert? Let us know! We plan on providing you, dear readers, with a behind-the-scenes look at what is happening in Lake County - whether it's the local band preparing for a big show or the head chef of a restaurant cooking a gourmet meal.

Joe

And we're going to include lots of pictures.

The whole idea for this blog started with the passion that we have for entertainment of all kinds, and we're hoping that passion comes through in our writing. It certainly came through during the photo shoot for our blog pictures.

So, hang onto your seats, readers. And if you have any idea for the blog, drop us a line. We look forward to exploring the world of entertainment with you.

To go directly to their new blog, visit www.LakeCountyJournals.com/blogs/eyeonentertainment.

I'm looking forward to seeing what Kathy and Dani are going to come up with.

McMillen Field makes mark in Antioch

By ALEX BURFORD
antioch@weeklyjournals.com

ANTIOCH - Antioch Community High School principal Mike Nekritz was pleased with the opening of McMillen Field on May 31.

He said that the field was built for the children and that there has never been a complex like it in the area.

The field contains baseball and softball diamonds, basketball courts, tennis courts, an area for concessions, and a space for activities such as marching band practice.

Kicking off these community activities was the Sequoit Summer Celebration, which was held throughout the day at the new field.

ACHS girls track coach Dan Oslage said that there was something fun for any age at the celebration, which was kicked off with girls and boys soccer.

Soon following were softball tournaments, flag football tournaments, free-throw competitions, tennis and dance clinics, and many more activities at the new field.

There also was live music, bouncing castles, a rock wall, face painting, and fun carnival-type games.

Local bands performed as well as the choir and the marching band.

No, is it really June?

I can't believe my calendar actually reads June. It seems like just a few weeks ago I had the heat going.

That is probably true, but this year is going by fast.

My little sister is learning to drive. A bunch of my friends are getting married.

And we still have the whole second half to the year to look forward to.

As flustered as everyday life can get, at least the village and park departments are doing their best to make summer enjoyable.

We have a lot to look forward to this summer in Antioch.

In the next couple of weeks, Antioch pageants will take place.

The girls will get a chance to compete for Miss, Junior Miss and Little Miss Antioch.

The pageant will be Saturday, June 21, in the Antioch Community High School Auditorium.

But this isn't all we have to look forward to, there also will be the "It's Thursday" concerts beginning Thursday, June 26, with the Lakes Area Community Band. The concerts will continue throughout the summer until Aug. 21.

And just in case you forgot where the concerts take place, they will be at William E. Brook Entertainment Center on Skidmore Drive.

So, when you start to get stressed and are looking for something fun to do, check out the village Web site, www.antioch.il.gov, to see what events are coming up.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town," e-mail reporter Jessica Jacobsen at jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

Successful Prostate Cancer Treatment Starts With Early Diagnosis

Peter F. Leonovicz, III, MD
Urologist
Aurora St. Luke's
Medical Center

Prostate cancer, one of the most common forms of cancers in men, is best treated when diagnosed as early as possible.

"When we obtain early diagnosis and treat the tumor before it spreads outside the prostate, the cure rate is much higher," notes Peter F. Leonovicz, III, MD, a urologist at Aurora St. Luke's Medical Center in Milwaukee.

Diagnosis may require a blood test for elevated levels of prostate-specific antigen (PSA), a digital rectal exam, in which the physician feels the prostate for abnormalities, followed by a transrectal ultrasound and biopsy.

An ultrasound probe is inserted into the rectum to measure prostate volume and scan for tumor masses. It also helps guide another type of probe through the rectal wall to take 8 to 10 small samples of prostate tissue for biopsy – microscopic evaluation of potential cancer cells. The biopsy will provide a Gleason score that helps determine a prognosis and treatment.

Treatment Options

Removal of the prostate (radical prostatectomy)

- Open surgery: An incision several inches long is made in the pubic area or the perineal area (between the scrotum and anus).
- Robotic-assisted surgery: Aurora St. Luke's was the first hospital in Wisconsin to perform robotic-assisted surgery and has the most experience in performing this minimally-invasive surgery. This procedure achieves all the objectives of traditional surgery with less trauma to each patient, translating into shorter recovery time and less pain. Aurora St. Luke's has performed over 500 robot-assisted prostatectomies.

- Laparoscopic surgery: Several very small incisions are made in the abdomen through which micro surgical instruments are inserted.

Radiation therapy

- External beam radiation: A computer aims radioactive rays at the prostate from outside the body to kill cancer cells.
- Brachytherapy: Radioactive "seeds" are implanted in the prostate to kill cancer cells. This may have fewer side effects than external beam radiation.

Cryotherapy

- A probe is inserted into the prostate and freezes the prostate to kill cancer cells. This technique has improved in the last few years, but long-term data is not yet available, according to Dr. Leonovicz.

Hormonal therapy

- Hormonal medication doesn't cure prostate cancer, but sometimes is used with radiation therapy or when cancer has spread to other areas of the body. By impeding testosterone, it can slow cancer growth.

Sometimes prostate cancer is slow growing and less likely to cause death than other health issues. For men over age 70, those with other health problems or whose life expectancy is less than 10 years, "watchful waiting" can spare them from unnecessary treatment.

"Studies indicate that based on patients' perceptions of the experience, their satisfaction and quality of life are similar whether they had a prostatectomy or radiation treatment," Dr. Leonovicz says.

But there are issues related to monitoring PSA levels for cancer recurrence following treatment, and the feasibility of follow-up treatment if cancer reoccurs. "Salvage" radiation following prostatectomy is generally well-tolerated," he notes, "while 'salvage' prostatectomy after radiation therapy is associated with an increased complication rate. The best advice is to discuss all treatment options with a prostate cancer specialist."

For more information on prostate cancer treatment options, call the Aurora St. Luke's Second Opinion Program at 1-888-649-6892.

Health worker honored

ANTIOCH — As a health aide, Marlene Schultz's objective is to take care of the students at Hillcrest Elementary School in Antioch.

Little did Schultz know that her job would result in her receiving recognition from the Food Allergy Network.

Schultz received an honorable mention for the Mariel C. Furlong Award for Making a Difference, which recognizes outstanding service and contribution by individuals and organizations that have addressed the needs of people with food allergies.

"I didn't even know I was nominated when I received the letter stating I had received honorable mention for their award," Schultz said.

Schultz, 58, said she was nominated by Hillcrest parents, District 34 Superintendent Scott Thompson, and Hillcrest Assistant Principal Janet LeMieux.

"I feel honored that the parents and everybody else felt enough to take the time to do that," Schultz said.

"I feel like I'm just doing my job, to take care of the kids as best I can," she said. "And so it was a surprise to me that somebody thought highly enough to take the time to write letters and actually send [them] in. So, it was a pleasant surprise."

Schultz has spent 21 years as a school nurse, which she said has taught her many valuable lessons.

"Along the way you gain a lot of experience and knowledge, and I think that the positions that I've held now and in the past have helped me to know what to do for the students and you know how to best help them," Schultz said.

"It will be done professionally. And it will be just another day at the college."

College of Lake County gets armed

Board approves policy to allow campus police officers to carry firearms

By DANI SCHWEIGERT
dschweigert@nwnewsgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE — Security personnel at College of Lake County, Lakeshore Campus and Southlake Campus will have a new look starting in the fall.

Beginning Oct. 1, officers at the Grayslake, Waukegan and Vernon Hills campuses will be able to carry firearms, as a policy to allow the officers to be armed was approved May 27 by the College of Lake County Board.

"I was extremely pleased to see [the vote] was unanimous," said Kevin Lowry, director of the Campus Safety Department. "It improves the overall safety and security of the campus community."

The policy allows the college's 14 law enforcement officers, who currently carry batons and pepper spray, to carry firearms and also requires the Campus Safety Department to convert to a police department. Lowry said the college's security will be known as the College of Lake County Police Department. The department also has five associates who help with security personnel.

Justin Tarnowski, of Gurnee, plans to attend College of Lake County in the fall. He said the policy is positive, as long as it remains under control.

"I would feel more protected with the stuff that happened at Virginia Tech and Northern Illinois University," he said, "but they could maybe abuse it."

College of Lake County Public Relations Specialist Diane Rarick said six of the seven trustees were present at the May 27 meeting, along with this year's student trustee. All present voted in favor of the policy, she said.

Lowry said the policy was first read to the board in April. It was created in conjunction with a comprehensive emergency operation plan for the college, which is planned to include internal updates of procedures. Those updates will discuss when deadly force can be used and which type of firearms will be permitted.

The college will continue to use local police departments to help with investigations and training opportunities, Lowry said, but he is glad the college's security will be better prepared to help the public.

"It shows the community we're ready to protect them no matter what may occur," he said. "If we need to use firearms, it would limit the extent of injuries. The overall reason is because of the trends with other campuses. It could happen here, and we want to have services to protect the public."

The officers will undergo training four times a year, Lowry said, which will include two live-fire sessions and two firearm-simulation sessions.

He added that the officers also must complete a 20-hour program before Oct. 1, as well as a psychological screening. The policy is estimated to add $200 in insurance costs for each officer each year.

Richard Anderson, chairman of the College of Lake County Board, said he has been in favor of the policy from the beginning.

"It's always been my fear that some husband will come to the college because he thinks his ex-wife is messing around and will cause a hostage situation," he said.

The changes, Anderson said, won't be disruptive to the campus.

"It's going to quietly occur," he said. "It's one more thing the officers can use to protect themselves and [others]. It's just an evolution of the college, and it's something needed in this day and age."

There has been some opposition toward the policy, Anderson said, but the campus is generally in favor of it.

"It will be done professionally," he said. "And it will be just another day at the college."

These bats got me going batty

"There's a rabid bat in Lake County. Never touch a bat, especially if it's acting crazy," the radio announcer said.

That got my attention. How the heck can you tell if a bat is acting crazy?

Maybe the bat isn't acting crazy. Maybe it's just having a moody day, same as us. You know, the kind of day when we vent our feelings on everyone around us. A bat, in order to take the weight off its world, hangs upside-down. If we were to hang upside-down, people might think we're nuts or overly involved in yoga. So, who's crazier?

Admittedly, one bat species sucks blood and that might constitute some craziness, but mainly they prefer the blood of sleeping cattle and horses. It's not that they leave us humans alone (most of the time) because we're oh-so-special; they just don't like the taste of our blood. So, they're selective in their craziness. And, is their drinking blood any weirder than drinking ouzo?

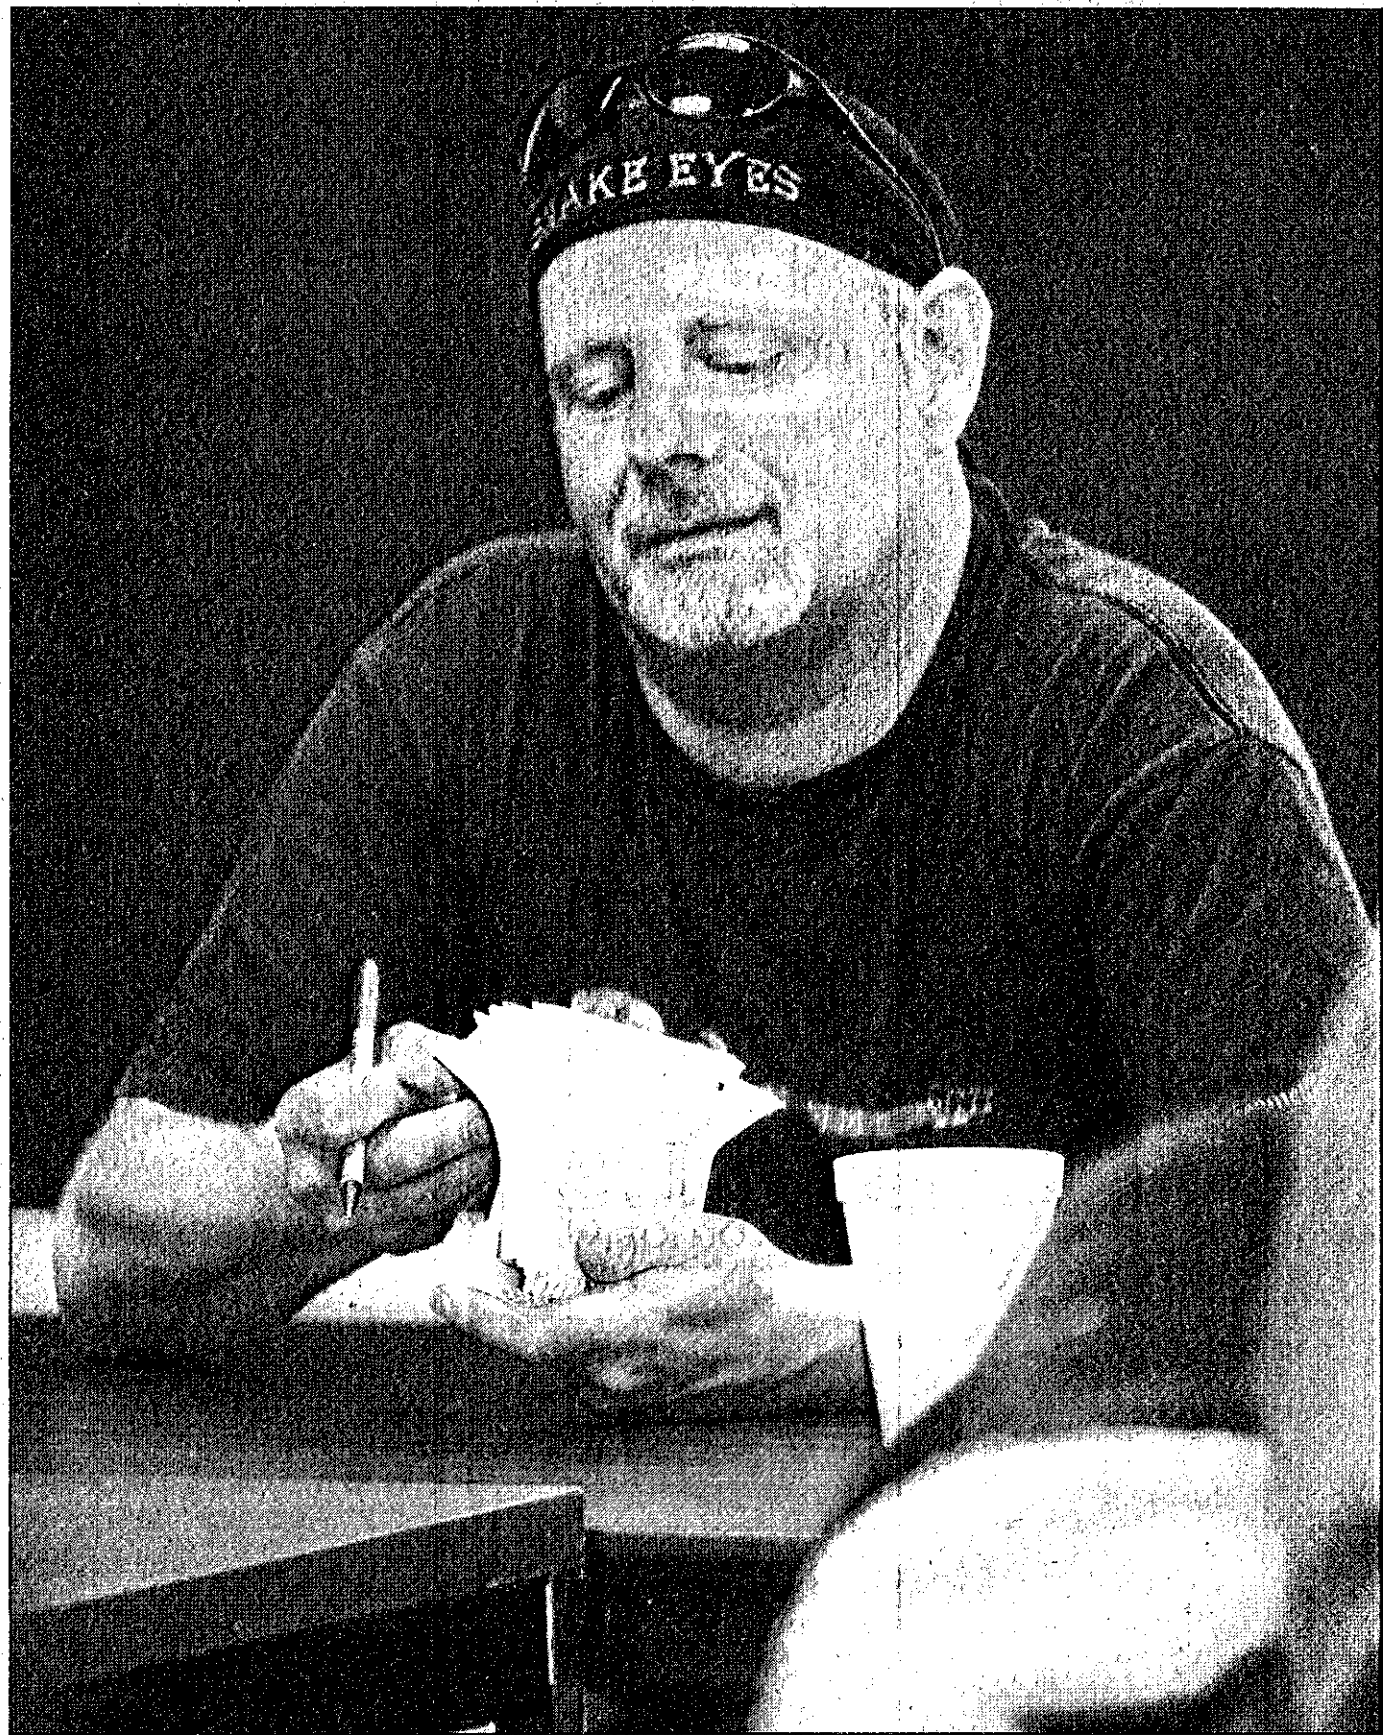

Of course, there are the clichés about bats, such as "blind as a bat." But bats are not blind, and they have strongly developed hearing. No bat wife is going to yell at her husband, "Don't you ever look where you're going?" and no bat husband is going to yell back. "Wadja say?"

Yes, bats are scary. They look like mice, and mice shouldn't fly. And, we especially don't like them flying into our bedrooms at midnight, but they are nocturnal. One showed up in my niece's dorm room at 3 a.m. Terrified, the girl phoned her father, screaming for him to kill it. Daddy was 500 miles away, so he yelled, "Die, bat, die!" through the phone. My niece flew out of her dorm room and into the 20-degree night, like, forgive me, a bat out of hell. The bat stayed put, nice and cozy, apparently leaving at will the next night. Tell me, who's crazy here?

So, then, how do you know when a bat is a rabid nut job? One source says a bat engaged in daytime activity (including, but not limited to, reading "Interview with a Vampire") characterizes bat madness. Another suggests that if a bat is grounded or paralyzed, do not go near it; in fact, do not go near any bat.

A bat can bite humans and pets, and the number of psycho bats in Lake County has increased. Last year, it was nine, up from previous years. Even with the small number I was concerned, so I checked and discovered that if you think you have bats in your belfry, house or yard, there are bat-removal services.

Addendum: The Lake County Health Department urges anyone who has direct contact with a bat or notices a bat acting in an unusual manner, to call them at 847-949-9925. If a bat is in your home, do not chase it away because it might be needed for rabies testing. Close the door of the room the bat is in, and keep people away from it. If a bat has had direct contact with a person and it escapes, the incident still needs to be reported.

MUNDELEIN - Missy Columbia of Gurnee has not been the same since she was hit by a car in 2003.

The 17-year-old used to consistently accomplish daily tasks. She easily remembered things and had a stable disposition.

But now she is different.

Columbia often behaves like a small child and has an erratic memory, said her mother, Laura.

The changes are the result of a traumatic brain injury that Columbia suffered almost five years ago in the car-against-pedestrian accident.

Columbia said the head injury has added hardships to her life.

"I don't like it," she said. "I want to be like everybody else who struggles in life, but my brain injury gives me extra struggles on top of regular struggles. It sucks."

Area residents who have experienced a traumatic brain injury can seek free assistance from the Lake County Center for Independent Living, a nonprofit organization in Mundelein that seeks to empower disabled people, so they can be self-sufficient.

The center's services include advocacy, independent-living assistance, referral facilitation, paperwork aid, educational instruction and support-group care.

Center seeks to make positive difference in lives of disabled residents

People who have suffered a head injury can visit the center to make phone calls to their doctor. They also can bring paperwork that they would like to have explained.

Providing brain-injury survivors with information and support can make a positive difference in their lives, said Diana Nelson, an independent living advocate at the center who specializes in brain injury. Her 29-year-old son, Matt, suffered a traumatic brain injury in 2000 and has received help from the organization.

"We're here, and we're ready to assist," Nelson said. "I work not only with the brain-injury person, but also their families."

Those affected by a head injury are welcome to attend the Lake County Center for Independent Living's Traumatic Brain Injury Support

Helping the center

The Lake County Center for Independent Living is funded by the state and federal governments and receives money from corporate institutions and individuals. Donations and volunteers are being sought by the group. For more information, call 847-949-4440 (TTY at 847-949-0641).

In addition, the center will host its annual gala benefit at 6 p.m. Friday, June 27, at Midlane Country Club, 4555 W. Yorkhouse Road, Wadsworth. Those who would like to donate an item to the event, can receive information by calling the phone numbers above.

Group meetings, which take place at the center from 7 to 8:30 p.m. the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Nelson said she started the meetings in 2004 after recognizing a need for head-injury assistance in the area.

"There was really nothing out there," she said. "Our group just keeps growing."

The group meeting May 27 attracted about 20 people, including Columbia.

She went to the meeting with her mother and boyfriend, Derek Sebben. Both have been accepting of the head injury, Columbia said, adding that she found similar acceptance at the meeting.

"We got to rant and rave about stuff [related to] brain injury," Columbia said. "I never really got to do that before. It was nifty."

Larry Thomsen of Libertyville also attended the group meeting. He suffered a traumatic brain injury in 2005 after being involved in a motorcycle accident.

Thomsen said support from the Lake County Center for Independent Living had helped him cope with his disability.

He added that he felt comfortable receiving assistance at the center.

"I love it," he said. "This is the best place in the world."

Diana Nelson, an independent living advocate who specializes in traumatic brain injury, talks to head-injury survivor Josh Niggeman during a Lake County Center for Independent Living support-group meeting.

Pet clinic to help seniors take care of their pets

County Municipal League names board

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

The Lake County Municipal League has a new board of directors.

The 2008-09 board recently was elected and includes Round Lake Beach Village President Rich Hill (board president); Vernon Hills Village President Roger Byrne (vice president); Hainesville Village President Ted Mueller

"I look forward to leading this esteemed organization of Lake County governments,"

Hill said. "We have a tremendous amount of talent that we will use to improve communications between the Lake County Municipal League and its members and our state and federal elected officials."

The Lake County Municipal League focuses on the issues of interest to the municipalities, which include transportation, education funding and pension-funding reform.

Being cool by unschooling

In case you hadn't heard, "unschooling" is the new home schooling.

Instead of learning about math or English or any of those other old, fuddy subjects that are taught in both the schools and home school sessions, people who are unschooled learn about the world around them.

Stuff like, "Waking up at 10 a.m. is nice!"

Or, "If I eat 50 cookies in a 30-minute period, I get sick!"

The concept behind unschooling is that children learn better when they're actually interested in the subject they're studying. I completely agree with this statement. That's why I still know the secret code to Nintendo's "Contra" (up, up, down, down, left, right, left, right, B, A, select, start), but can't for the life of me remember anything I learned in algebra.

But we didn't have cool ideas like unschooling when I was a child. Even home schooling was still thought of as just a haven for those who would otherwise be bully fodder. So, I had to go to school just like every other Joe.

Now people are given an option. Kids can be unschooled.

Can you imagine the end-of-the-year test for this?

1. What things do you NOT want to put in a bathtub?

2. Toast: wicked awesome or overrated?

3. Where exactly does belly button lint come from?

These would be great questions. Except for the fact that most kids who are unschooled aren't given tests. Most aren't even given grades. Not that I can blame the parents for this. Who wants to give their kid a C in hygiene and an A- in video games?

I suppose the real issue is if these kids are missing out by skipping the usual school subjects like social studies, science and lunch. Do you really need to know that turtles are reptiles? Or that the Constitution guarantees free speech? Of course you do! You may end up on "Jeopardy" one day. Or at least "Who Wants to be a Millionaire."

As cool as it sounds, I don't think I would have liked being unschooled. I learned a lot of important things at school.

Stuff like, "Don't talk about Star Trek in public unless you want to be beat up for your lunch money." (Fortunately, I was a reduced-lunch kid. Bullies had to beat up two of us in order to get one free meal. And that tended to be too much work for most bullies.)

Or, "Jocks date cheerleaders. Nerds form garage bands."

So, while unschooling may work for kids with parents that have (A) too much free time or (B) a wish to die of stress before the age of 40, the rest of us will continue to send our offspring to the places that trained us so well - the video game arcade.

Save money, support local

Gas prices are above $4 a gallon and likely to stay there. The price of food and most other commodities also is steadily increasing, in part because of the high gas prices. Economic reports released Friday show consumer spending fairly static in April, despite millions of dollars in tax rebate checks that started to be mailed out late that month. And as area schools let out for summer break and the summer vacation season arrives, families are reconsidering their travel plans.

Our suggestion: Think local. There are parades, fireworks, cardboard boat races, and so much more.

In order for these events to continue to be successful, they need community support. Money raised during this year's festivals help pay for next year's festivals. So, if you haven't planned your summer vacation yet, or you are reconsidering that long road trip to Wally World, keep the local events in mind.

An important decision

To the Editor:

The Illinois General Assembly faces an important decision that will impact hundreds of thousands of Illinois families - modestly increasing funding to address a critical issue that affects the health of millions of people in Illinois.

Today, nearly two million Illinois residents are stuck in a dental care gap with little or no access to basic dental care.

To address this issue, the Bridge to Healthy Smiles coalition launched a three-point legislative plan that will provide access to dental care for families, many of whom must wait up to six months and travel up to four hours to visit their nearest dentist.

Illinois has among the lowest funding rates for dental Medicaid in the country and has not seen an increase in more than 30 years.

In fact, there was a 7 percent decrease in 2002 to help balance the state's budget.

The state's Medicaid budget is $12 billion of which 1.6 percent is dedicated to dental care.

Currently, dentists are only reimbursed 46 percent of the procedure cost for treating public aid patients.

Bringing dental Medicaid funding rates to a minimal level that will cover the dentist's basic cost of service is long overdue.

We're asking for a modest increase of 18 percent.

Our comprehensive three-point plan calls for the funding of 10 new dental clinics, raising funding for Medicaid dental care and offering student loan forgiveness for dentists who practice in under served counties.

This is an issue that spans across our great state and includes more than 40 percent of urban and rural Illinois.

Access to care should not be determined based on a family's income.

Twenty-six percent of poor or low-income families visit dentists annually compared to 40 percent of middle-income families and 54 percent of high-income families.

We have put forth an obtainable and reasonable solution to the oral healthcare crisis in Illinois. Now it's up to our elected leaders to act in the best interest of the more than two million children and adults who need it most.

using a purple sticky trap across Illinois and other states to look for emerald ash borer (EAB), an invasive pest that is deadly to ash trees. EAB is small and stealth-like in its behavior patterns and is extremely difficult to detect.

If not controlled, EAB threatens to devastate the entire ash species in North America.

The traps are purple in color, sticky to the touch, and will hang in trees.

They are intended to help officials find this cunningly deceptive creature in its adult life stage.

The traps will be deployed this May and early June and will remain through Labor Day.

Realizing that these traps may be an eye-sore to some and a source of entertainment to others, IDA officials are asking for the public's cooperation in ensuring that these traps are left alone to "do their thing."

Therefore, we have put together this print PSA for newspapers and other print publications to make the general public aware of EAB and the purple trap.

In order for these traps to work, they must be left alone. It's important that the public is aware of their purpose and help us keep them in place.

For more information about EAB and the purple traps, visit www.illinoisEAB.com on the internet.

Thank you for your cooperation in this important environmental endeavor.

Lifestyle choice the key to good health

Wasn't it the noted philosopher Pogo who said, "We have met the enemy, and he is us."

I thought about that when I read the recent American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) Bulletin.

In it, there was a quote that drew my attention.

It was part of an article written by Joan Lieberman-Smith, a co-author of "Body Signs: How to be Your Own Diagnostic Detective."

"The greatest opportunity we have to reduce deaths and improve health lies in our personal behavior," she wrote.

The remark was in an opinion piece titled "Push Prevention not Pills."

That title drew my attention.

Just a few weeks ago, one of my columns was about the subject that Americans might be over-medicated.

That is not to say that I discount the miracles of modern medicine.

Doctors are the first line of our health-delivery system.

But, just as important, no one knows our bodies better than we do, and no one can contribute more to our good health than we can by how we live our lives.

In her column, it was pointed out that 20 years ago, only 10 countries had a higher life expectancy than America, but today 41 countries outlive us.

There must be a reason for that.

Two of the prime contributors to our higher death rate can be linked to cigarette smoking and obesity, or the fast-food syndrome.

These are lifestyles that we can control and prevent diseases.

I remember the days when smoking was a macho thing to do, spurred by the movies where the male stars were the tough-talking, cigarette-smoking handsome guys.

There weren't many women smokers in those days.

I never believed that I'd see the day when there would be more American women smokers than men.

Amazingly, we've come to that, and the number of young women smokers is especially alarming.

The article also pointed out that there are twice as many Americans over 50 diagnosed with heart disease and cancer than Europeans.

Also, the American Stroke Association reported that 50 percent of American women are twice as likely, and men 60 percent as likely, to suffer a stroke than Europeans.

The rising number of cases of diabetes are directly related to obesity.

Again, the obesity among the very young in America is cause for alarm.

It was also interesting that on the same page of the column was another one that reported about the high costs of health care.

Its emphasis was that, contrary to the notion the high costs of health care are an issue confined to the working poor, that is no longer the case.

Affordable health care is the major issue amongst the middle class.

That is all the more reason why the first line of defense against rising health care costs must be prevention.

What we do with our bodies, whether we smoke; what, and how much, we eat; how much we exercise; can all be a part of a lifestyle that can make us healthier.

Mainly, I wrote this column because I see a dangerous trend among young Americans.

They cannot continue lifestyles that ravage their bodies with consequences on their life expectancy.

With a few adjustments, they can feel better, be happier, and live longer.

I know it wasn't Pogo, but someone once said, "so much of our destiny is in our own hands."

Being late the norm for family

The anticipation in our household has been building steadily all week. School is almost out for the summer and my boys can't wait.

Who can blame them? Summer vacations from school are one of the best parts of being a kid.

But what will I do for excitement, without my usual heart-pounding race to get the kids to school on time?

Let's face it, there is nothing like the thrill of a promising morning after it disintegrates into a flurry of empty threats, half-eaten breakfasts and my 8-year-old son hopping down the driveway on one foot, shoe in hand, granola bar hanging out of his mouth, attempting to jump in our moving van as it coasts down the driveway.

Coffee in hand and tires squealing, I take off toward school, sputtering to myself something about the boys being grounded from video games for the next hundred years. I'll be hard-pressed to replace exhilaration like that!

It seems like being late is an inevitable part of being a mom. No matter how much preparation was done the night before, as soon as I am ready to walk out the door (with minutes to spare) a last-minute diaper explosion, wardrobe malfunction or missing shoe situation always rears its ugly head.

For my husband, Tim, being late is somewhat of a pet peeve. As you can imagine, I drive him crazy.

And for the life of him, he has no idea why our family is always late.

I guess what he finds so mind boggling is that while he is always ready on time, the rest of us aren't. Yes, he is just sitting there, shoes on and ready to go, watching T.V. to pass the time.

That's when I am cleaning breakfast dishes, putting the dogs outside, bringing the dogs inside and then herding the kids into shoes and out the door.

Yes, although my husband has been ready and waiting for an hour, we still end up being late. Hmm, Honey, I guess this is just one mystery you might never solve.

Parents can help children avoid summer camp anxiety

By GENEVA WHITE
editorial@nwnewsgroup.com

After a long winter of being cooped indoors, many youngsters might jump at the chance to experience adventures at summer camp.

But for some little ones, the idea of leaving home for a week or even a day can be overwhelming. So, how can you help your kids resist the temptation to fire off a "Hello Muddah, Hello Faddah. Here I am at Camp Granada"-style letter to you? Experts say it's important to talk to a child about his or her fears before camp and to make sure the program fits with that child's personality.

"It's like anybody," said Shelley Alterman, president of Just4camp.com. The Jacksonville, Fla.-based Web site ships care packages to summer camps throughout the country. "When you're going away, you're excited, but you're nervous because you don't know what to expect. You're like, 'Am I going to be by myself? Am I going to have friends?'"

Alterman recommends packing fun stationary and postcards to send home, as well as a disposable camera for taking pictures to share later. Journals to keep track of campers' thoughts and activities also make good gifts for camp, said Alterman.

Parents should write frequently to their children, she said. Youngsters can be disappointed if there's nothing for them when mail is being distributed each day.

"You want your name called," Alterman said. "You want a letter or a package."

Try to keep letters and e-mails on the positive side, said Kim Kiser, executive director of YMCA Camp Duncan in Ingleside. The camp offers residential and day programs for kids ages 7 to 15. Avoid talking about bad news from home or even how much you're missing the child, Kiser said.

"Consistent information from Mom or Dad, when it's cheery, is helpful," she said. "They can go about their activities and know that their parents want them to have a good time and are behind them and support them."

Of the 150 children Camp Duncan receives for residential camp, between two and five usually have separation anxiety, Kiser said. The first symptom often is a tummy ache that can't be traced to any physical health issue.

Country store offers array of tasty products

BELOIT, Wis. - Recently on a visit to the country, my friend turned me on to Kauffman's Country Store. It's tucked neatly away in the countryside of Beloit, Wis., and you really have to be watching for it or you might miss it entirely.

It's not a large place, but it sure does pack a punch.

Kauffman's mantra, "We put food on your table," more than rings true. They carry all kinds of different food items, including food you can purchase in bulk and food that is all

As someone who needs to be cautious of the foods I eat, I was thrilled to see the variety of natural foods they carry in their store. Some of the bulk foods, in particular, are huge bags of cereal, chips and pretzels. When I say huge bags, I mean huge bags. Imagine what you'd pay in the commercial grocery store for these kinds of items in much smaller boxes, and you'd be amazed at how little they cost at Kauffman's.

Do you like pasta? Kauffman's has many different varieties of pasta in bulk, and just like its other items, for far less than it would cost you in the commercial grocery store.

The store also carry many different spices, baking supplies, specialty meats from Martin's of Lancaster, Pa., sugar-free products and cookbooks.

I bought a container of dry cucumber dill dip mix that I made for my sister-in-law's bridal shower. And with the recipe directions right on the product label, all I had to do was add the wet ingredients and I was finished. How easy is that?

I was pretty impressed by the performances, most notably Tyler's. She displays a wide array of emotional vulnerability here and is quite convincing. Day camps can cause anxiety for kids

• CAMP

Kids often worry their loved ones aren't safe or their pets aren't being cared for, among other things.

"They're really happy to be there, but they miss their mom," Kiser said. "This usually happens night one or night two. After that, we're over the hump."

Parents are consulted if a child is homesick, Kiser said. Sometimes, a simple phone call from Mom, Dad or a caregiver is all it takes to help the youngster start having fun.

And getting the kids out of the house during the summer doesn't necessarily mean sending them to an overnight camp. Several Chicago-area facilities provide day camp programs as well.

The day camp offered through the Early Education Station in West Dundee includes field trips to local parks, as well as visits to the Lincoln Park Zoo.

Summer camp coordinator Kathy Clark, who also works as a preschool teacher at the Early Education Station, recommends sending the child to camp with a family photo that he or she can look at throughout the day as a reminder of home.

Employees at store 'love what they do'

• FOOD

I also purchased a jar of Kauffman's own pumpkin butter – all natural, of course – and it was heaven on a spoon.

Not only is Kauffman's well known for its homemade bread, rolls, cookies and fruit pies, its workers also make furniture and carpentry. Another of its specialties is handcrafted lawn furniture, including chairs, gliders, swings, arbors and picnic tables in five different sizes.

What I really loved about Kauffman's were the people who work there. They are probably the nicest people I've ever met, greeting and helping you with a smile and a soft, gentle voice. In today's world, most people working in customer service barely grunt a greeting anymore, so this was a nice change.

Kauffman's Country Store has been owned and operated by Arthur and Evelyn Kauffman since 1997, and you can tell by the atmosphere that they love what they do and really care about their customers.

You can find Kauffman's at 9550 W. State Road 81 in Beloit. They are open Monday through Saturday from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., and they are closed on Sundays. They can also special order items, so if there is something you might be interested in, give them a call at 608-362-1750.

A trip to Beckman Mill

Just a few miles east of Kauffman's Country store on State Road 81, you will come upon an historical marker.

My husband, Phil, and I decided to follow the signs to see what adventure might be in store for us.

Here we came upon Beckman Mill, which stands along Racoon Creek. The mill was originally constructed by William How in 1868 and purchased from the Beckman family in 1882. Milling operations ceased in 1954, but the How-Beckman Mill was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1977.

The property, now owned by Rock County, has become part of the 50-acre Beckman Mill Park, which still houses the Beckman home, the mill, and a visitor center that was built as an exact replica of the Grinke Creamery. The original creamery was torn down, but would have been situated at the front of the current mill park entrance.

Walking along the property, you will also be greeted by an abundance of trees and a covered foot bridge that takes you over the fish passage to the other side of the property. Here you can take in the view and imagine the days of old where the pond and dam meet the beautifully restored grist mill.

Guided mill tours take place from 1 to 4 p.m. every Saturday and Sunday, May through October. Tours are only a $3 donation and last about 30 to 40 minutes. If you visit on the first Saturday of the month during tour season, you will be treated to actual grinding at the mill.

And if you're lucky enough to have Sheri Disrud as your tour guide, tell her I sent you! Sheri stopped to talk to us the day we were there, even though tour season had not yet started, and she gave us some wonderful information about the mill and the area.

In 1990, Friends of Beckman Mill, Inc. was formed, and the volunteer organization has done many wonderful things, such as restoring the 1868 grist mill, constructing a new concrete dam, re-establishing the mill pond, and restoring an 1848 cooperage, among other things.

Friends of Beckman Mill, Inc. is an affiliate of the Wisconsin Historical Society.

Visiting Beckman Mill is worth the trip. Group tours are available during the week by appointment only. You can call 608-751-1551, or visit their Web site at www.beckmanmill.org for more information.

Remembering a music legend

Lively 'Buddy Holly Story' has Drury Lane Theatre on a rocking roll

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

The musical legacy of singer-song writer and electric guitarist Buddy Holly, who helped shape the direction of rock 'n' roll, lives on in the spirited "Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story" now kicking up its heels on the stage at Drury Lane Oakbrook.

Justin Berkobien gives a dynamic performance as the Texas-born, bespectacled music legend whose meteoric career began to spiral in 1956, resulting in such hits as "That'll Be the Day," "Peggy Sue" and "Rave On" before his death in an Iowa plane crash less than three years later at age 22.

Berkobien recreates the youthful, headstrong artist who is determined to play his kind of music his way, despite early skeptics he encountered at Decca, his first record label. Meanwhile, periodic phone calls from his mother asking whether he was "eating right" humanize the character.

The show tracks an early Holly supporter, a radio DJ played by Derek Hasenstab and musical sidekicks the Crickets (performed by bassist Cody Siragusa, drummer Jim Barclay and guitarist Michael Mahler) as well as the circle of stars with whom he associated, including Casey Campbell as the Big Bopper and Tony Sancho as Ritchie Valens. And it introduces Tempe Thomas as Maria Elena, the woman Holly married in a whirlwind courtship.

Tickets, please

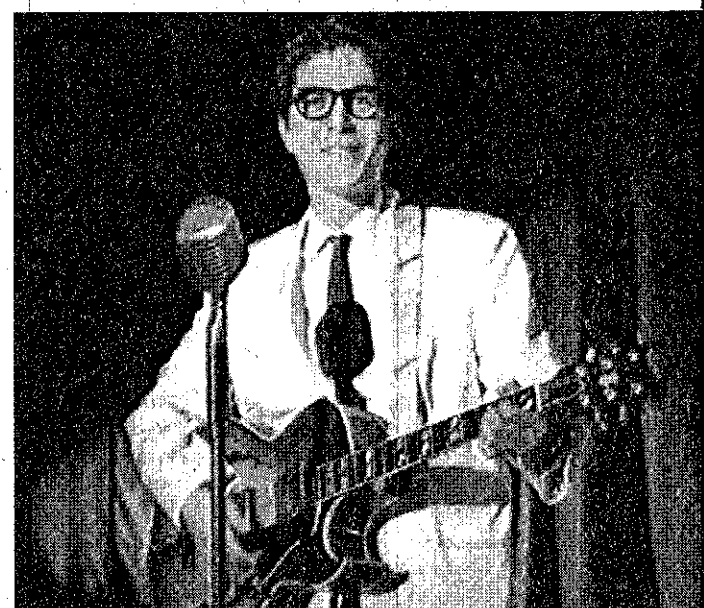

What: "Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story"
Where: Drury Lane Theatre Oakbrook, 100 Drury Lane, Oakbrook Terrace
When: Through July 27
Tickets: $28-$33
Show information: 630-530-0111

The popular musical, featuring some 20 classic Holly tunes, was first seen in London's West End in 1989.

Written by Alan Janes and Rob Bettinson with musical direction by Malcolm Ruhl, the production is smoothly directed and choreographed by Tammy Mader as it follows the singer's struggles to establish a voice in the world of rock music, first in Lubbock and then recording in Clovis, N.M. under Norman Petty (played by Michael Gerhart).

"The Buddy Holly Story" also shows how Holly bridged the color line with his music, winning an all-black audience when he and the Crickets were accidentally booked at the Apollo Theater in New York.

Byron Glenn Willis appears as the Apollo emcee, and Karen Marie Richardson, Lill-Anne Brown and Neda Spears as Apollo performers.

Sneaky Pete's: Small Eatery Offers Big Taste And Selection

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

Sneaky Pete's has the carry out sandwich and ice cream market cornered—right on Route 45 at Gages Lake Road in Grayslake. It's there you'll find the cheery, yellow and red eatery, along with proprietor Peter Lembessis, his wife Agnes, and business partner Richard Hicks.

Although Sneaky Pete's has been open only one month, Peter said, "business has been very promising." One customer confirmed this by telling us he just had to stop for another delectable meal.

Sneaky Pete's recent success is no accident, Peter said, "I was raised in one of the most popular Greek ethnic restaurants in the city of Chicago." He described how at 8 years old he started peeling potatoes for an uncle for $5.00 a bag, then worked his way up from dishwasher, to waiter, to management. Peter added that he started his first Sneaky Pete's—using his nickname—while in college at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

In addition, Pete said he learned how to cook from the 2-dozen chefs who worked in his family's restaurants, as well as cooking alongside his mother.

Lembessis also credited his partner Richard Hicks' skills as a business start-up consultant and chef.

"I don't like compromising quality," Peter said. "So I don't mind offering a money back guarantee if you don't like the food." After tasting Sneaky Pete's Gyros and their fresh cut French fries, I'd guess requests for second helpings would be more in order. The Gyros was piled high with well-seasoned beef and lamb, onions, and tomatoes, and served with Sneaky Pete's homemade Tzatziki sauce (sour cream, yogurt, cucumber, and dill). The skin-on, Idaho potato French fries were just the right firmness and lightly sprinkled with sea salt. Service was fast and friendly, and the price for this filling meal was reasonable at $7.00.

Sneaky Pete's is small on space, but big on selection. Their other sandwiches include a pure beef Vienna hot dog, Polish or Italian sausage, Italian beef, burgers, and charbroiled or breaded chicken breast. Or choose one of their salads, such as an authentic Greek salad.

The eatery also serves signature "Fork'n Dippin'" bucket meals. These meals offer a choice of fresh cut fries or pita triangles prepared with a selection of meats and cheeses and one of their homemade dipping sauces, like Greek Parmesan gravy or chipotle mayonnaise. Pick from 10 bucket meals, including a tempting southwestern grilled chicken breast with onion, bacon, Merk's cheddar cheese and barbecue sauce for $4.99, or try the grilled vegetable, pepper, egg and cheese for just $3.99.

And don't forget that Sneaky Pete's is the place to stop over the summer to enjoy refreshing, high quality ice cream cones, shakes and sundaes. Relax at one of their tables outside and savor the season by capping off your meal with one of these tasty treats.

"I'd love to grow with this community," Peter said. "Everyone is so friendly and we do appreciate the smiles." Lembessis said he's planning frequent promotions, so he's looking forward to seeing those smiles on a regular basis.

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Aries, don't make promises you can't keep, as others will soon deduce you are not reliable. If you need help completing a task, ask for it.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Momentous occasions start with some inspiration. You have plenty of it this week, Taurus. Whether a matchmaker or a consummate host or hostess, you're on the ball.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Gemini, you can find the sun even on a cloudy day and this week is no different. Just when things seem down and out, you arrive and turn everything around.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
While you pay lip service, you've yet to put any action behind the words, Cancer. Get moving or you're bound to lose some credibility along the way.

LEO - July 23/Aug. 23
Rash decisions put you into a pickle, Leo. It'll take more than some bravado and preening to get you out of this situation, however. Pisces may be your saving grace.

VIRGO - Aug. 24/Sept. 22
Virgo, the unanswered questions you have will continue to plague you unless you actively seek out the answers. Choose those closest to you to help you in your quest.

LIBRA - Sept. 23/Oct. 23
Libra, others have no problem putting their trust in you, but sometimes you have difficulty delivering. It's your welcoming persona that leads others to believe you can tackle it all.

SCORPIO - Oct. 24/Nov. 22
The best way to zone in on a goal is to write down all of your responsibilities and do them one by one.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov. 23/Dec. 21
A solid work ethic will go a long way toward helping you land that promotion you've been after, Sagittarius. But you'll need to back up that drive with legitimate results.

CAPRICORN - Dec. 22/Jan. 20
Capricorn, there comes a time when you have to tackle the biggest decisions. This is one such time. Take a day or two to mull over all your options. As long as you are able to do that, you will make the best choice.

AQUARIUS - Jan. 21/Feb. 18
Aquarius, if you have been star gazing looking for answers, you may want to consider looking more closely at what is right in front of your eyes. You will find what you seek if you can just focus your attention in the right place.

PISCES - Feb. 19/March 20
Whoever led you to believe that excitement would be around every corner failed to take this week into consideration, Pisces. Tough it out. Better things are around the corner.

Making the cut for year

When sports teams wrap up their seasons, it's a good time of year to remember how well people performed. Another reminder of our students' accomplishments comes from their conferences.

The North Suburban Conference released the names of athletes who were named all conference.

A number of players also received all-conference honorable mentions.

These players helped to make baseball in the NSC competitive and exciting. And with many underclassmen being named all-conference or receiving an honorable mention, I think it's safe to say we have a lot to forward to next year.

The baseball players above aren't the only positive going on in the NSC. Lakes baseball team won its first regional title in the school's young history. Lakes defeated Marengo 4-3 to capture the IHSA Class 3A Grayslake North Regional. Unfortunately for the Eagles, their postseason run ended there. They lost to Crystal Lake Central in the Grayslake Central Sectional semifinal 14-1.

But with pitching ace Vanderwall being just a sophomore, we should hear about more postseason success for the Eagles.

A true champion

Warren junior Bogatov wins tennis singles title

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgruop.com

GURNEE — Winning tennis matches at the state level can be a tough task, but winning seven in order to be the state champion is an even tougher task. Warren junior Denis Bogatov knows how difficult that can be, but he did it.

"I'm extremely excited," Bogatov said. "I'm kind of happy to have won state as a junior."

Bogatov, 17, defeated Eric Spector of Glenbrook North in two sets, 7-6 (5), 7-5, for the championship title in boys tennis singles.

But Bogatov's championship has more of a story behind it. Spector and Bogatov have been playing each other since Bogatov was about 8 years old. During that time, Spector has beaten Bogatov a number of times.

"I think he had the confidence over me," Bogatov said about going into the match.

But facing off against a talented

"I never had a crazy atmosphere like that. The crowd was huge."

Denis Bogatov
Warren tennis player opponent wasn't the only thing Bogatov had to worry about.

In December 2007, Bogatov hurt his back at super nationals when he hit a high forehand.

"I couldn't even walk," Bogatov said.

His injury resulted in him missing more than three months of tennis.

Considering Bogatov began playing at 5 years old for two hours a day, seven days a week, three months off was quite a stretch for the tennis star. With rehab and his time off, Bogatov was able to get healthy and play his junior season at Warren — a season that was capped off with a memorable finish.

"I never had a crazy atmosphere like that," Bogatov said. "The crowd was huge."

Among those in the crowd were Bogatov's dad, some teammates and Warren boys tennis coach Greg Cohen.

"All my teammates took me on the court and picked me up," he said.

Bogatov also received a congratulatory hug from Cohen.

Cohen said he wasn't sure how many people were there to watch the match, but there was a good number of people who were pulling for Bogatov.

"The people [were] there to support Denis. ... I think that helped," Cohen said.

Even though Bogatov defeated Spector in two sets, Cohen said, the match was about two and a half hours. "It was great tennis to watch," Cohen said.

After a state championship, Bogatov will turn his attention to national tournaments and deciding where he wants to go to college.

He has not decided where he would like to play, but he's considering Northwestern, University of Michigan, University of Illinois and Notre Dame.

"I'm kind of open about that," he said.

With collegiate aspirations, Bogatov is still looking forward to his senior year.

"I'll just play the season and hope to win state for the second time and have fun," he said.

Cohen also is looking forward to an enjoyable season with Bogatov, who will transition into a leadership role next year.

"I think it's just going to be a lot of fun," Cohen said. "I think he's going to enjoy leading younger kids and his buddies."

Better fishing rods cost more

I always fish with Shimano rods and reels because, for many years, I've considered them the best gear made. I pursued them to become a sponsor on my radio show for quite a while. Believe it or not, I actually turned down other rod and reel manufacturers sponsorships because I didn't want to have to use anything other than Shimano products.

My personal gear tends to be in the $150-or-less range for a rod/reel combo. I have always figured that, as a writer, I should use equipment that the average guy on-the-street used. I never wanted to use equipment that most people can only dream of ever owning. Besides, the Shimano gear I have been using all this time works well and lasts and lasts and lasts.

When Mike Bonadonna of Sportco Marketing invited me to accompany him to Sturgeon Bay recently, he told me to leave my gear at home. I assumed that I would be able to fish with some Shimano equipment that was a cut above my normal gear.

My assumption was correct. The rods and reels that Bonadonna handed to me were from Shimano's high-end lineup. The rods were two Crucial models that list at $119 and up, and two Cumara rods that begin at $199. The spinning reels were a pair of $249 Sustain models and a $699 Stella. That is not a misprint, folks, I am talking about a $600 spinning reel. The bait-caster I was allowed to use was the brand new for 2008, Core, a $350-and-up reel.

I quickly realized that the equipment I've been using for years is simply "good enough." This premium gear is incredible. Never again will I say that it isn't worth the bucks to go out and do damage to your credit card to buy expensive gear.

The Crucial rods were excellent. There are 66 models available so you can perfectly pair your rod to your reel and the method of fishing that you are using. The Crucials had fast tips, yet plenty of backbone to easily bring in those stubborn Sturgeon Bay smallies.

The Sustain reels immediately provided a major upgrade over what I had become used to using. They were smooth with a capital "s." My casting ability immediately improved and the Sturgeon smallies didn't challenge the reel's drag.

I imagine that being able to use the $600 Stella spinning reel would be a similar experience to getting out of the family sedan and slipping behind the wheel of a Ferrari. Wow! The reel performs so well, it is scary. I am glad I got the chance to try one, because it will probably be the last time I get to handle one for a long time.

What impressed me most was the Core reel/Cumara rod baitcasting combo I used. The reel weighs next-to-nothing, but is amazingly well built. I can tangle line on any equipment at any time, but the Core seemed to forgive all of my faults. It wouldn't allow me to create a "bird's nest" in my line. It was easy to cast light baits a long distance. The light-weight reel had plenty of cranking power. When paired with the Cumara rod, the total weight felt like nothing at all. It wouldn't be a problem to fish all day with a rig like this one.

For those of you who think that free rods, reels and other tackle rains down on me every day because I am a writer and broadcaster, you are making an inaccurate assumption. I do get a fairly decent amount of stuff to test and evaluate, but the only way I will get my hands on this high-end Shimano gear is if I purchase it.

One problem for me is that I hate to stop using perfectly good equipment and as I stated earlier, the Shimano stuff seems to last forever. Well, I just got my chance to upgrade! A Spirex blew out on me just the other evening while bass fishing a local pond. The gears seized up almost completely.

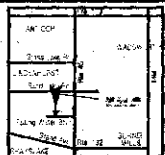

Was I upset that my beloved Shimano equipment failed? That particular reel logged eight years of pretty hard fishing with absolutely no cleaning, oiling or other maintenance. It had lasted a lot longer than it reasonably should have. Maybe the Shimano products don't last forever, but they certainly perform under pressure for a very long time.

I have had a revelation. I have learned that there is a vast difference in the quality and performance of rods and reels as you move to higher price points. Is it worth it? I believe it is. That said, my best advice is that you should buy the best equipment that you can afford without damaging your credit rating or your marital relationship. I am fairly certain that I will never be able to lay down $600 bucks for a Shimano Stella. I will, though, try to move up from the Saharas, Spirexes and Symmetres that I use, up to the Saros and Stradic models. It may take me a while, but I will begin to upgrade my equipment slowly.

Free Fishing Days in Illinois will be held June 6, 7, 8 & 9. On these days it will be legal for any person to fish in waters within the jurisdiction of the State of Illinois, including the Illinois portion of Lake Michigan, without possessing a sport fishing license, inland trout stamp, or salmon stamp.

Five simple steps to going green on a budget

(MS) — Many people want to do their part for the environment and make eco-friendly changes to their lifestyles but don't know where to start. Sure, it would be nice to emulate high-profile celebrities like Leonardo DiCaprio or Cameron Diaz who zip around in hybrids and purchase top-notch green products. But what do you do if you don't have a Hollywood budget?

According to Mary Caraccioli, financial expert and multi-E Emmy Award-winning host and executive producer of "Money Matters Today" on CN8, The Comcast Network, anyone can make green choices while minding their bottom line. Caraccioli offers five easy ways to make a difference:

1. Rethink your trash: Make a conscious effort to reduce your garbage and increase your recyclables. "Everything should not be destined for the trash can," says Caraccioli. "Help reduce the mountains of material headed for the landfill by donating toys, clothes, old computers, cell phones and extra food to charities." The remaining "trash" can then be sorted and recycled where applicable. "I recently discovered that Hewlett Packard recycles old printer ink cartridges," she offers. "When you purchase new cartridges, the company includes mailing labels to send back the empty cartridges at no cost to the consumer."

2. Plan your meals: Reduce costly impulse purchases by creating a list of your week's meals before heading to the supermarket. This limits impulse buys and saves money. By purchasing the right amount of food, you won't have to throw out extras that spoil. "By targeting my shopping, I found I could splurge on organic, locally grown fruits and veggies and still spend less," Caraccioli says.

3. Aim low: "All of your meals do not have to feature meat or fish," Caraccioli suggests. "Foods lower on the food chain such as fruits, veggies and grains, require fewer resources and can help you stay trim and healthy." Try to replace one or two meals a week with cost-conscious alternatives full of fruits and vegetables and see the positive impact on your grocery bill and waistline.

4. Trim the paper trail: Reduce the environmental impact of your paper usage by purchasing recycled office paper. "I have tried Dymitar EarthChoice paper," says Caraccioli. "You can get it at most big office supply stores or online. I also print on both sides of the paper, it really cuts consumption, and keeps costs down." Of course recycling used paper is also important. Take the lead on recycling, not just at home - but at the office too.

5. Don't waste money on "green" posers: The word, "green" has become a great marketing slogan for all types of businesses. Some are legitimate, others are cashing in on the eco-friendly trend but do not offer any real benefit to reducing carbon emissions. "By understanding what CO2 is and what it means to go 'carbon neutral' you will be better able to spot great ideas for going green," Caraccioli offers. "Get the scoop on how CO2 is lowered by visiting www.carboncounter.org."

Signature Flooring & Design offers service and selection

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

With so many options to choose from, purchasing new flooring can be overwhelming. That's where Signature Flooring & Design's professional sales staff makes all the difference. According to President Tim Miller, every Signature sales professional has at least 10 years experience in the flooring industry. As a result, he or she has the expertise to help you find just the right product for your needs.

Visit either of Signature Flooring & Design's showrooms and sales staff will help you choose from a complete line of flooring products from leading manufacturers, such as Armstrong, Bigelow, Bruce, and Mohawk. Miller said Signature has large, 3-foot by 7-foot hardwood displays so "you can get a feel for how the wood will look in your home." And since Signature buys by the truckload, "we can offer the customer competitive pricing," Miller added.

"Our level of service is our trademark," said Miller. "Schedule an appointment to have your floors measured and we'll give you a quote right then and there. And with material in stock, we can jump on a job quickly."

Signature Flooring & Design also prides itself on its professional, courteous installation crews. Miller said their family-run business values quality workmanship. "We're known for our installations because we get the job done right and treat your home with respect."

In addition, Signature's emphasis on service is reflected in the lack of an automated phone system, despite the company's growth. "We personally answer our phones so that the customer doesn't have to wait," Miller said.

Signature Flooring & Design can also help make your new flooring a reality with financing. Make no payments and pay no interest for 12 months is always available. Other special promotions are offered throughout the year, such as their current offer of Heartland hardwood flooring for just $5.88/square foot installed.

So it's no surprise that Signature Flooring & Design receives an abundance of testimonials to a job well done. Tim Miller said that's why the company's motto is, "You're gonna love your new floors, you have my signature on it."

Summer Road Trip Tips

(MS) — 'Tis the season to pack a few supplies, get behind the wheel and embark on a road trip adventure.

The convenience of setting your own pace, charting your own course, choosing your destination, and many other benefits to road-tripping push taking a trip by vehicle ahead of other modes of travel.

Setting your sites on some summer fun? Follow these guidelines:

- Get maps and itineraries ahead of time.
- Auto club memberships often have lodging discounts as a perk, so investigate getting on board.
- Have your car inspected and do any preventative maintenance prior to departing on your trip.
- Check cell phone service areas, because roaming fees add up fast.
- Stock an emergency road kit.
- Pack drinks and snacks to minimize the number of stops you'll have to make, and to save money.
- Remember to have fun.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such as requesting you to send money prior to making a purchase, or offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them.

These checks are FAKE and YOU will be held liable for repaying the funds to the bank.

It is usually a good idea to avoid transactions overseas or from out of state. To protect your self, shop locally.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands. Niagara & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious.

For information on how to report a scam, go to: <http://www.ic3.gov>

This is the Internal Crime Complaint Center and is a partnership between the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) & the National White Collar Crime Center.

Current or Former FedEx Ground & Home Delivery Drivers:

• The difference between independent contractor and employee is important. Drivers across the country are standing up to FedEx and challenging this.

• FedEx treats these drivers just like employees—but with no benefits like holiday pay, workers' comp, retirement stock and more. What's more, you have to bear the costs of doing business. If you are a current or former FedEx Ground or Home Delivery driver and would like to talk with an attorney:

We want to hear your story.
